I AM PEACEKEEPER NEWS

Taking Peace from Thought to Practice

Peace is not built through intentions alone; it takes shape through the values we practise, the choices we make and the influence we have on the people around us. With this understanding at its core, the I Am Peacekeeper Movement continues to take its message beyond conversations and into meaningful action through its initiatives in peace awareness, education and learning.

Through a series of talks and engagements, the Movement brought attention to three key initiatives:

- Peace Wristbands: Conversations around the Peace Wristbands introduced the seven Human Values—Truth, Gratitude, Forgiveness, Love, Humility, Giving and Patience—as everyday reminders of the choices and behaviours that contribute to a more peaceful society.

- Peace Institute: The Movement also highlighted the learning opportunities offered through the Peace Institute, particularly its Inner Peace and Peace Leadership courses. While the Inner Peace course focuses on personal reflection and the practice of human values, Peace Leadership seeks to encourage responsible, values-led leadership and the ability to foster peace within communities.

- Peace Publications: The talks also showcased the growing collection of Peace Publications, comprising books on human values, happiness, wisdom, interfaith understanding, stories, poetry and reflective thought. With titles and formats catering to different age groups and audiences, these publications extend the Movement's message through reading, learning and meaningful engagement.

Together, these initiatives reflect the Movement's broader approach to peacebuilding: creating awareness, nurturing understanding and encouraging the practical application of human values in everyday life.
